

Contents

Judita Šavrdová, Martin Hanus, Lenka Krajňáková How Map Type Shapes Student Questioning: Evidence from Choropleth and Dasymetric Population Density Maps	5
Eyüp Artvinli Critical Thinking in Turkish High School Geography Curriculum: A Component-Based Analysis	21
Markus Hilander Encouraging Finnish early childhood education student teachers to sense their everyday environments through photo-walks	45
Rebekka Dossche Rural heritage and its perception by the local community: A participatory approach in the Ligurian Apennines (Italy)	61
Paolo Molinari, Rossella De Lucia Constructing Geographical Knowledge through On-Site, Immersive, and Digital Exploration: A Comparative Study in a Multicultural Neighbourhood	81
Ahyuni, Sri Mariya, Endah Purwaningsih Revealing geography teachers' cognitive structures on Indonesia's strategic maritime position through a word association task	97
MAPPING SOCIETIES (Edited by Laura Lo Presti and Matteo Marconi)
Dóra Hegyesi Peculiarities of urban spatial cognition. A pilot study on the relationship of quantitative elements of mental maps and perceived success in navigation	117
GEOGRAPHICAL NOTES AND (PRACTICAL) CONSIDERATIONS
Gino De Vecchis Geographical Education in an Increasingly Complex World: What, How, and Why	131